THE GREAT CALAMITY.

Loss of the United States and America.

Great Loss of Life on the United States.

Value of Boats Lost $100,000—of Cargo Lost, 300,000.

Full Particulars, Incidents, etc.

Mr. Woolfolk, a passenger on the America, furnished the Louisville Democrat with the following statement and particulars of the collision:

The America struck the United States on the larboard side, forward of the wheelhouse. On the forward deck of the United States were twenty-five barrels of petroleum. The prow of the America cut through these barrels, bursting them, and tearing away the supports of the forward cabin, causing it to fall on the boiler deck. The petroleum ignited, and instantly all was ablaze. The river was a sheet of flame. The terror and confusion which followed the disaster cannot be described. He states that at the moment of the disaster he was asleep, and did not wake until the boats came together the second time. Hastily putting on his pantaloons, he went into the cabin and was surprised to see that all was perfectly quiet on the boat and that but one man besides himself had left his berth. Going forward, he saw in a moment what had occurred. The United States had already burned back to the wheelhouse, and the flames were rapidly sweeping abaft. Seeing the passengers of the States rushing pell-mell aboard of the America, Capt. Woolfolk leaped into the river from the bow of the steamer, with nothing but his pants and underclothing on and swam ashore. He says the collision happened about half-past eleven o'clock, one mile and a half above Warsaw, and at the time the night was very dark, and either a brisk rain or snow was falling. The America, ascending, blew two whistles, to which the States responded, but a heavy gale was blowing and the whistle was not heard by the pilot of the America. After the first two whistles, the America again blew twice. Mr. Remelin, pilot of the States, says he blew once, and when he heard the America's two whistles, he stopped and commenced backing; but it was too late. It is presumed the pilots were deceived by the darkness as to the distance that separated the boats. The America struck the States on the larboard side, running nearly through the baggage-room and into the hull. They got apart by the recoil of the concussion, but immediately swung together again, the America on the Indiana shore and the States on the outside of her. When they lashed the second time the affrighted people began to escape from the States to the America. The latter vessel then commenced to back, but too late, and caught fire on her upper deck from the flames of the States, instantly. The America backed down two or three hundred yards below the wreck of the United States, near enough the shore to enable all on board to jump ashore. The United States swung around, head up stream, and sunk in three feet water forward and seven or eight feet astern. A considerable portion of the wreck will be saved. The America is a total loss, but all her passengers and crew, except a poor, unknown emigrant and his two children, were rescued. There were about seventy-five passengers on the United States, sixty of whom are believed to have escaped. Her register and everything in the office and cabin were lost. Little or nothing was saved by the passengers of either boat. Both hulls are lying near the scene of collision, above Warsaw. All the officers of both steamers acted in the most heroic manner throughout the trying ordeal. Capt. Wade, and Mr. Reily, clerk of the United States, remained on the roof as long as possible, tearing off shutters and casting them into the water for the struggling victims. Owing to the burning oil which covered the surface of the river all around and below the doomed steamers, the passengers, with few exceptions, could not be induced to leap overboard. Mr. George Northrup, railroad agent, and Mr. Inskeep, of Madison, jumped from the hurricane deck of the United States to the lower deck of the America, and, strange to say, neither of them was badly hurt. A Mr. Green and bride, of Madison, procured life-preservers, but did not understand how to fasten them. On reaching the lower deck, however, Mr. Green found some bits of rope, with which he fastened the life-preservers around himself and wife, and then tying their arms together leaped into the water. They reached the shore in safety. Ole Bull swam ashore with all his clothing on and his diamond studded fiddle in his hand. All the members of his troupe saved themselves. A little son of Mr. Jack Pearce, only eleven years old, jumped from the hurricane roof of the United States and swam ashore. His mother and younger brother perished. Capt. Pearce, Wm. Taylor, clerk, and other officers of the America, got ashore from the stern of that boat after she swung around against the bank. Mr. Taylor, having over-exerted himself, swooned away on reaching land.

STATEMENT OF MR. JAMES N. PRICE.

Mr. James N. Price, of this city, was on his way home, accompanied by his elder brother, Mr. Frank L. Price, and had just retired to his stateroom on the United States, when the collision occurred. He had spent the evening in the ladies' cabin, and left it not more than ten minutes before the accident. For some time before supper was announced, Miss Johnson, of this city, entertained the company in the ladies' cabin by very brilliant performances on the piano, and again after supper. Miss Jones, of Florida, expressed herself much pleased with the grace, beauty and musical skill of Miss Johnson, and went to the piano, just before supper, and introducing herself, the two soon became friends. Miss Johnson, a beautiful girl of sixteen, was on her return from school, accompanied by her cousin, who had gone to Cincinnati to meet her and accompany her home. Some time after supper a dance was proposed, a number of musicians were procured, and Miss Johnson, Miss Jones and Mrs. McFerrin, a newly married lady from Edgefield, opposite Nashville, with Mr. James N. Price, one of the clerks of the boat, and another gentleman were engaged. When the first set was over, the musicians retired in order to serenade one of the bridal parties on board, and the dancing ceased. The rest of the evening was passed in friendly conversation among the young people, until about twenty minutes after eleven, when the party broke up, little dreaming of the terrible calamity impending. Mr. Price had scarcely settled himself in his berth when the collision took place. He immediately sprang to his feet, and on opening the door of his stateroom, he found the lamps broken by the shock, and the cabin full of smoke and flame. Nothing was left him but to make his escape as speedily as possible. There was not the slightest chance to go to the assistance of friends. To have made an attempt to penetrate the cabin would have been to encounter death from fire or suffocation. He and his brother, who occupied the stateroom with him, hastily threw on a part of their clothing, and, together, sought an opening for escape. Fortunately, Mr. Price had with him a life-preserver—an India-rubber pillow—and on reaching the lower deck he inflated this, and he and his brother, in the midst of flame and smoke and the surging of the boat as she was about to go down, leaped into the stream and, after a swim of ten or twelve minutes, succeeded in reaching the Indiana shore. Mr. Price did not see the young ladies after parting with them in the cabin. Miss Johnson, with a life-preserver about her waist, leaped into the river, it is supposed, and was seen no more until found next day among the reeds or willows, some twenty-five miles below the wreck, and not far from Madison. She was not drowned; she had perished from cold and fright. She was found in a sitting posture, as it were, with her body out of the water, with her hair unwetted and arranged as when she left her friends, gay and light hearted, the evening before. Her head was slightly thrown back, and her face was very pale. A beautiful girl in life, she is said to have appeared very beautiful in death. Let us hope that she did not linger long in life during that terrible hour—that death came speedily to shut out the appalling scenes around her, and give her pure, unsullied spirit wings for that clime beyond the stars, where pain and fear and partings may not come.

MR. CHAS. N. HAYS AND WIFE.

Mr. Hays and wife, of Nashville, were on the United States returning home. Mrs. Hays was burned to death in the cabin. In trying to save her, Mr. Hays was badly burned about the head and face, and is now lying in a dangerous condition at Cincinnati. Gen. Thomas Smiley and a son of Mr. Hays arrived here yesterday, en route for Cincinnati. The following citizens of Nashville were on the United States: M. B. Toney, of Benson & Toney; J. W. McFerrin, of McFerrin & Winstead, and his bride, Chas. M. Hays, of Cheatham, Woods & Co., and his lady. A large number of Nashville merchants being at present absent in the Eastern markets, it is feared that many who were returning perished. The greatest anxiety still prevails in that city.

REVELRY AND DEATH.

The ladies' cabin of the United States, but a few moments before the terrible disaster, was the scene of a gay dancing party. Young and beautiful ladies tripped over the floor with light and happy hearts, little dreaming of the fate in store for them. The happy throng had barely retired when the boats collided, and then the scene was changed from music, merry-making and glee to the terrible carnival of death.

STATEMENS OF MR. ANDY HARRIGAN, CLERK OF THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. Andy Harrigan, the second clerk of the United States, gives the following statement: "The boats collided about a quarter past eleven o'clock, at Raly's Landing, about one mile above Warsaw. I was in the barber-shop at the time, and heard our whistle blow. After the first whistle our pilot rang the stopping bell, then immediately after rang the backing bell. I then had an idea of what was the matter, and ran forward on the starboard guard as far as the starboard chimney, when the boat was struck by the America on the larboard side, about ten feet aft of forward, the collision driving a number of barrels of petroleum into the furnace, causing the flames to flash up in a moment. The United States then swung around, and the pilot tried to back our boat into shore. The America then being disentangled, was worked into shore, and was then a little further up the river than we were. We then backed our boat very near the America, when a number of our passengers were saved by jumping off of the United States on to the America. By actual count there were seventy-five passengers on the United States; out of this number there were twenty-five ladies. There were two bridal parties on the boat, and some of the passengers thought they would have a little fun in serenading them, which they did, and some twenty minutes after the serenade the collision occurred, and I think if it was not for the serenade, the bridal parties would have been lost, but as they were in their staterooms awake, they were apprised of the danger in which they were, and got off the United States on to the America, and as their state-rooms were on the same side as the America, they were saved. The scene in the cabin at the time was indescribable. Several ladies stood, throwing their children overboard and crying for assistance. Upon the guards a number of ladies stood, wringing their hands and crying for help, but they would not leave the place they were in, and perished in the flames. Previous to the disaster we were enjoying ourselves in the cabin, dancing, and the passengers had just entered their state-rooms."

STATEMENT OF CAPT. R. M. WADE.

Capt. R. M. Wade, commander of the United States, makes the following statement:

"It was about a quarter to half past eleven o'clock Friday night, when the United States and America came together, one mile above Warsaw, on the Indiana shore. The night was dark, but not foggy. The America went into the States on the larboard, abreast of the baggage-room, and only cut through the guards and a few of the top timbers of the hull. The flames appeared to come instantaneously with the crash on both boats, shooting up above the top of the hurricane roof of the States, where I was standing. The wind was blowing hard up stream. The States backed into the Indiana shore, where her head swung quartering out into the stream, going down in a few seconds. The America blew two whistles, which was answered by the States by one whistle—or it was all I could hear, owing to the high wind. The States blew again, but we could not hear the America's reply. About half an hour after the accident, the towboat Reindeer, ascending, came in between the wrecks and proffered her services, taking a few of the sufferers. After remaining an hour, the Lady Grace came alongside, when the Reindeer departed. We had sixty-five passengers booked, among whom were fourteen ladies—our chambermaid says only thirteen. We lost thirty-five passengers altogether. Six of the ladies were saved."

ON THE DUMONT,

a sad sight greeted the eyes of the crowd. Strewed along the cabin floor, on cots, the scalded and wounded were lying, groaning under the agonizing pain of their wounds. Men and women but half dressed, covered with shawls, blankets and bed quilts, were gathered around the stove, shivering with the cold. Hatless men, with bandaged heads and arms, were also there, and the sight that we witnessed upon our entrance into the the cabin, was one that we shall never forget.

OFFICERS OF THE BOATS.

The America and United States each carried an average crew of sixty officers and men, and were officered as follows: America—David Whitten, master; Wm. C. Taylor, first clerk; John Mullen, second clerk; Wm. McKinley, third clerk; Lloyd B. Goff, mate; Charles Steele, second mate; Henry Steele, watchman; Ids Holmes, engineer; Alexander Ellwell, second engineer; J. J. Kelley, barkeeper; Chas. Ditman and Napoleon Jenkins, pilots; J. Light, steward; Mrs. S. Jones, chambermaid.

LOST ON THE UNITED STATES.

Mrs. R. A. Jones and her daughter Eva, aged eighteen. The body of the latter was recovered and recognized at Madison, Ind. They were on their way to Pensacola, Fla., intending to sell some property there, and return to Waynesville, Ohio, where they have been spending their summers, and where they had resolved to reside permanently. Mr. Jones was formerly in the commission business in Cincinnati. He moved to Florida in 1860. Elijan Fort, colored porter, Rev. Mr. Parvin, and Rev. Mr. Risley, of New York, are missing; also, Mrs. Harriet Waring, of New Albany, and a young lady in her employ. Mr. Bigley, coal man; John F. Burns, J. M. Lewdower, M. J. Look, Madison, Ind.; M. Elfews, Mr. Hammers, William Briggs, Charles Runk.

Officers—John Fennell, steward; R. Marshal (colored), second steward; Jas Johns, third clerk; James Fennell, bar keeper; second barkeeper, from Louisville, name not known; Elijah Ford, (colored) porter, and "Dan," (colored), barber.

PASSENGERS KNOWN TO BE SAVED FROM THE AMERICA.

G. Stevenson; Mr. Power; Capt. Wm. Campbell; Miss Culberton, of Cincinnati; Mrs. R. S. Dunning and daughter, of Cincinnati; Mr. Fiashman and lady; C. F. A. Adae, of Cincinnati; R. G. Gallady, member of Congress from Kentucky; George Gaugh; J. A. Rothier; Joseph Dimick, on his way to Detroit; Mr. Slaughter and brother; Mr. Jones, on his way to Philadelphia; Capt. C. G. Pearce; H. Wolfolk, of Louisville; Col. N. Lord; Mr. Crane; Mr. Foster; Len. Rogers, of Louisville; A. B. Elmer; Charles Nichols; Mr. Griswold; J. P. Whitney; Burt Holmes, and the crew of the America. Mr. Wm. J. McKinlay, one of the clerks of the America, reported lost, is safe.

MISSING ON AMERICA, BUT SUPPOSED TO BE SAVED.

J. Crawford and lady; Mr. Ragge and wife, of Nashville Railroad for New York; Mr. Huddle, wife and daughter; B. F. Morris; B. Siessinger; Mr. Otter; John Maddox; P. Hartman.

There were ninety-six cabin passengers on the America, only one of whom is known to be lost. All the money in the America's safe, together with her cabin register, was saved.

INCIDENTS, ETC.

Capt. W. C. Taylor, the clerk of the America, burst open the room, No. 32, in which Miss Burton, of the company of Ole Bull, was sleeping. He had a great deal of labor in getting her out, and had to force her off the boat. She was finally saved through the exertions of Capt. Taylor.

Mr. Harry Brunswick, the distinguished billiard manufacturer, of Cincinnati, was a passenger on the United States. He was asleep at the time, and, upon being awakened, rushed into the cabin, and, as he was not seen afterward, it is feared that he suffocated to death.

The Madison Courier of the 5th says: The body of an unknown woman was found in the Ohio river, near the shipyard, about noon to-day, with a life-preserver attached. Doubtless this is one of the victims. She wore a belt around her body, marked "Miss Eva Jones, Pensacola, Florida," and a heavy gold ring on the third finger of her left hand, bearing an inscription inside it of "Hattie." This body was afterward recognized as Miss Mary Johnson, and her father reached here this evening and took charge of the body.

A Mrs. Pierce, of Louisville, together with an infant and little boy nine years old, was among the United States passengers. Mrs. Pierce and her infant were lost and the little boy swam ashore. He was furnished with a suit of clothes by Capt. Pearce, Superintendent of the mail line, and left at Florence, Ind., in the care of the telegraph operator of that place, with instructions to have him sent home on to-day's packet.

A Mr. Hays, of Nashville, was severely bruised, and was in the river struggling to gain the shore. A colored boy, named James Asa Mitchell, who was in the employ of Capt. Wade, jumped in, dragged him ashore and saved his life. Out of ten firemen on the States, only three were saved. There were but four persons saved out of a deck crew of twenty-two on the United States.

A German couple that had been married but a week were on the United States, and being very tired, they retired quite early in the evening. When the alarm was given, the husband awoke his wife, and taking out his handkerchief, tied their arms together, and jumping into the river, swam ashore together.

Ole Bull, the celebrated violinist, was on board the America, and escaped. He had, contrary to his habit, lain down in his berth with his clothes on, and when the crash occurred he seized his famous violin and made his way ashore, jumping into the water and wading. He lost all the property he had with him, with the exception of the violin and the clothes he wore.

The wife of Commodore Thompson, United States navy, and a lady traveling in company, were lost on the United States.

A lady on the America, in endeavoring to escape, got her dress tangled in the steamboat railing, and hung by her clothes until cut away by a colored man.

Mrs. Siebrook, of New Albany, who took passage on the United States at the foot of Fifth street, destined to her home, is among the lost. Her son went aboard the Dumont on her arrival at Cincinnati, and received the sad intelligence.

Capt. Lew. Vance, Mr. Sappington, of Madison, and Mr. M. Steele Bright, of Cincinnati, are reported lost on the United States.

Ole Bull, the first thing that he did upon hearing the alarm, was to cry for his fiddle.

Capt. Wade says the last man he took from the wreck of the United States was Capt. Joseph Cammiant, who was badly burned. He arrived at Cincinnati on Saturday night, on the Dumont.

The yawl of the United States was swung up on the stern-derrick, when the deck-hands made a rush for it, when it upset, casting all into the river, a number of whom were drowned. A number of the United States' survivors went down to Louisville on the Gen. Buell on Saturday.

The officers of the unfortunate steamers informed the Cincinnati Commercial that the citizens of Waraw, Florence and all along the shore were very kind, doing all in their power to relieve the sufferers.

BOATS, CARGO AND INSURANCE.

The United States, was built at Cincinnati, in 1865, at a cost of $230,000, was valued at the time of her loss at $140,000 and was limited in insurance to $105,000. The America, the most splendid specimen of naval architecture in service on the Ohio, was built in 1867, at a cost of $240,000, was valued at the time of her loss at $180,000. Both boats were insured in Cincinnati and Louisville offices, principally in Cincinnati, as follows:

Total in Cincinnati	90,000	95 000	185,000
Total in Louisville	15,000	40,000	55,000
Totals	$105,000	$135,000	$240,000

In addition to the above these boats carried an open "blanket" risk of $40,000 on cargo—$40,000 up and $20,000 down.

The United Staes left the Fifth street wharfboat on Friday night, at 7 o'clock, with about seventy-five cabin passengers, among whom were some twenty-five or thirty ladies.

The cargo of the United States comprised 16 barrels copperas, 115 dozen brooms, 128 barrels whisky, 60 settees, 56 barrels lard oil, 8 bales hair, 7 drums tobacco, 32 dozen buckets, 40 boxes starch, 10 boxes and 3 hogsheads bacon, 29 caddies tobacco, 4 tierces bacon, 120 kegs beer, 40 boxes soap, 23 threshing machines. She also received considerable additional merchandise at the Fifth street wharfboat.

The America's cargo consisted of 175 bales cotton, 100 barrels flour, 100 barrels whisky, 14 boxes household goods, one lot feathers, 25 dressed sheep, and one valuable horse, belonging to Mr. A. Luck, of Madison, Ind.

The America's main deck was all burned off. She lies against the bank, on the Indiana shore, head up stream, in seven feet water. The United States lies in eight feet water, head up stream, about one hundred yards above the America, and eighty feet from shore. The main deck of the latter is not all burned off, and the frames of her wheelhouses were still standing. The safe of the United States was recovered and taken to Cincinnati on the Dumont.

—Madame Parepa-Rosa has taken up her pen in vindication of theaters and actors, against the action of the Chicago Ministerial Association. She makes an ingenious defense, and is winning golden opinions on all sides.

—Texas is most unquestionably a land of "hog, hominy and plenty." For instance, pork is selling in Anderson county at 2½ cents per pound, and cornmeal in Hempstead is only worth 35 cents per bushel.

—Lewis Stanton, the negro who brutally murdered officer King at Covington, Georgia, died in jail in that place on Thursday, of wounds inflicted by the Sheriff's posse at the time of the murder of King.

—One negro woman murdered another near Marion, Alabama, the other day. They got into a fight over a piece of lightwood, when one with a dirk knife stabbed the other five times, inflicting wounds any one of which would have proved fatal.

—The people of Chicago are just now discussing the disappearance of a portion of their school fund, which, entrusted, as was that of the State, to a banking concern, thought to be reliable, has disappeared, it is feared, beyond recovery.

THE GREAT DISASTER.

We publish in this morning's APPEAL the full particulars of the great disaster on the Ohio, river by which so many households throughout the country have been draped in mourning. They will be read with interest and not without tears. The sudden shock—the awakening—the first terror—the hurry to escape—and then the sickening details of horrid and lingering death—all will tell with more than dramatic effect upon the minds of our readers. Though the Destroyer has not brought immediately to our doors the message of death that in our sister cities today makes mourning in so many homes, we are none the less profoundly moved by the results of so deplorable an accident.

Few of our merchants that read of the death of Mr. WILLIAM GARVIN, founder of the old and well-known house of GARVIN, BELL & Co., of Louisville, but will take the disaster to his own heart and speak regrets, perhaps drop a tear for one who was beloved and honored throughout the Mississippi Valley. But nearer to us, and only by a few months removed from residence with us, was Miss MARY JOHNSON, the daughter of Capt. W. J. JOHNSON, so well known in our commercial circles. As here, this child in years and woman in mind, had won upon all hearts by her intelligence, innocence and mirthfulness, so on board the ill-fated United States, she had captivated the passengers, achieved the respect of all, and the love of those of her own sex with whom she was thrown for the brief voyage. She had beguiled their time with song and music, had joined with them in the dance and had just retired, the sounds of revelry scarce died away, when the rude shock awakened her to danger and to death. Her father, in Louisville awaiting her arrival, unconscious of harm, was startled by the receipt of the news of the disaster, and on arriving at Madison, was shocked on being confronted with the lifeless remains of his child. The former scholar of Calvary Sunday School, so prominent for her attainments, her goodness, amiability and general excellence, was no more. The light of the household of our friend was gone. We sympathise with him, and this community will sympathise with him, as they will with all who are bereaved by this appalling calamity.

Beyond the first statement, that the sad event was the result of failure on the part of one of the pilots to hear the signal given by the other, we have nothing definite upon which to hinge a condemnation, that, spite of our sense of justice, rises to our lips as we contemplate the awful havoc of so brief a moment. We will, however, withhold any comments until the legal investigation, which will shortly take place, has justified it, or made plain that the officers were at their posts, watchful, careful and intent alone on duty. The general interests demand that such an investigation shall be thorough, and that carelessness, so fruitful of accident on the Mississippi river, shall, if known to exist in this case, be punished as severely as the law admits.

MULLINS AFTER THE KU-KLUX KLAN.

The irrepressible and oratorical MULLINS—he whose efforts in Congress last winter startled the world and amazed even a Radical Congress,—MULLINS, who soared after the American eagle and surpassed that patriotic bird by the height of his ascent, has at last essayed the task, so worthy of his daring and of his mettle, and is about to suppress, vi et armis, the ubiquitous Ku-Klux, and declare those of that Klan who will not stay suppressed, outlaws by "National decree." If thus fiercely MULLINS, at the commencement of the session, assails the mystic members of the mystic band, what may not these goblin "creatures" expect from him before the 4th of March. MULLINS, who says he has tried the suppression of these Ku-Kluxers by means of the State authority, and therefore knows they will not "down" at the bidding of "BROWNLOW and his meelish," asks that the queer beings, whom no man has yet seen to recognize as mortal, be suppressed,—in other words, that they be squelched, snuffed out, hung, drawn and quartered, dealt with in some way, so they be suppressed. We would remind the oratorical MULLINS of Mrs. Hare's receipt for soup—"first catch the hare." Let's first catch the Ku-Klux, and then we will suppress them. We hear of them now and then, and of their pranks in the dark, but in such mysterious ways that we have not half the faith of MULLINS, the astute—MULLINS, the suppressor—in their existence. Therefore we say again, let's catch these Ku-Kluxes, and then suppress them. Meanwhile, we suggest the troops of Uncle Sam can be more profitably employed with the Ku-Kluxers of the Plains, whose suppression has been determined upon in the way that MULLINS would suppress the Klan. The Sons of Malta, if not very careful, may yet fall under the displeasure of the lofty and suppressing MULLINS. Suppose the Klan catch MULLINS, which is an easy task, compared with his suppressing them, and initiate him—making him Cyclops, or Boreas, or what is better, suppress him. It would be a great relief to the public.

DEATH OF HON. J. PAT FARRELLY.

From the Arkansas (Little Rock) Gazette of Saturday, we learn of the death of Hon. J. PAT FARRELLY, at his place in Arkansas county, on the 25th November, and in the thirty-seventh year of his age. The deceased at one time represented this county in the State Legislature—in the session of 1855-6—and enjoyed a popularity with the people of Shelby second to no man of his time. A lawyer by profession, Mr. FARRELLY was for nigh fifteen years in the enjoyment of a promising practice in this city, which, on account of failing health, in the year 1861, he resigned, and retired to his plantation in Arkansas. Since that time, we understand, he identified himself with the Radicals of Arkansas, among whom he attained an unenviable prominence, and by whom he was elected to the present Legislature of that State.

THE increase of the public debt for the month of November will be in the near neighborhood of ten million dollars. Thus we go, says the Philadelphia Age, each thirty days adds to the debt of the nation, and makes the taxes more onerous. Why is this? First, because the Radical policy has paralyzed the business of the country, and thus cut off the receipts from income returns; and secondly, because the expenses of the Government are still at a ruinous figure. In a time of peace we are continuing war disbursements and when business should be prosperous, a sectional party is strangling it by unwise laws and regulations. There must and will be an end to this. The only question is, will business men cure the evil by forcing Congress to make the needed reforms, or allow the avalanche to come?

THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER RAILROAD.

This project, on foot for more than ten years, and which a few men—sensible reliable and trustworthy—have been, for three years past, laboring to revive, is nearer consummation to-day than at any time since it was first mooted. In a week or two it is expected that the connection between this and the Paducah Railroad will be made from Troy station, and that grading towards Dyersburg, will be put under contract by new year's. All the arrangements have been perfected by the Company. State and county aid has been secured, and the people are thoroughly aroused as far as Dyersburg—which seems to be located in a sort of Sleepy Hollow, the citizens of which are overcome with old fogyism, and averse to the progress that insures telegraphs and railroads. So far from being in indigence, the Company has abundant means to go on with the construction of the road, and put it through in two years, if Memphis and Shelby county but assist with the liberality of former years. When this is finished, and the Selma road is completed, then we may talk of a union depot where the trains of the five roads, each managed in its own interest and for the benefit of Memphis, may facilitate trade and commerce by prompt connections. Let all unite for the Mississippi River and the Selma Railroad.

WENDELL PHILLIPS AGAIN.

Mr. Wendell Phillips is glad there is a "a general demand" for a constitutional amendment "to settle the principles." He says:

We need a fresh statement of the principles that underlie our government. If the Republican government outrides the storms of the coming half century, it will be because now, at the outset, we understand each other and agree on the radical elements that make republics. We need a clear, square, unequivocal statement of the true relation between men and laws, between capital and labor, and a full repudiation of any legal recognition of race. * * * Unless great vigilance is used, the next generation will find itself in another race and labor revolution.

The peril is much closer and larger than most men anticipate. Look at it. Fifty thousand Irishmen, the surplus of the seven million population of a small Island, rule New York city. Flung upon our shores, ignorant and poor, they are made so much the tools of a few knaves as to render Republican Government in that city a failure. If the surplus of the seven hundred millions has done that, what will the surplus of the four hundred millions of China effect? Ignorant, degraded, weakened by utter poverty, with no sympathy for our institutions, they are a new element of danger. We need carefully to watch all the legislation respecting them. We need constantly to impress on the nation the lesson this rebellion has taught us that the Republic is safe so long as it forgets race and remembers only manhood. The moment our laws take note of negro, Indian, Chinese, Irishman, and forget the man hid behind each, that moment they plant the seeds of discord and weakness.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—Rollins, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, will this week again send in his resignation to the President, to take effect at the end of the present month, unless his successor is sooner confirmed.

Gen. Grant will return here on Thursday.

Speaker Colfax will be serenaded by Indiana friends to-morrow night.

The certificate of decision from the District Court of Virginia, in the case of Jefferson Davis, was filed in the Clerk's office of the Supreme Court to-day.

Minard, the colored man from Louisiana, claiming his seat as the successor of the late Col. Mann, was in the House today. It is said he is here without the certificate of Gov. Warmoth, but with that of the Board of Registration. The further statement is made that the Colored Library Association have written him a letter not to press his claim against Simon Jones, the other claimant, as such a course would probably be injurious to the future representative interest of the colored race.

The War Department has received and distributed a circular from the headquarters of the armies of the Cumberland, Ohio and Georgia, relating to the meeting of the societies of the Cumberland and Tennessee at Chicago on the 15th and 16th. Arrangements have been made by which all the railroads centering there, together with their connections, will convey those attending at reduced rates.

The Republicans in caucus here appointed Messrs. Edmonds, Ramsey, Conkling, Trumbull, Sherman, Rice and Pomeroy a committee to review the standing committees.

Judge Fisher in his charge to the grand jury to-day, instructed them to inquire into instances of fraudulent voting by non-residents employed in the military service, at the June election, and to omit no effort to bring to punishment violators of the law.

The Supreme Court to-day was occupied in hearing the argument in a number of cases involving the constitutionality of the Legal Tender act, and the application of the act to trusts and contracts, made before its passage. Hon. B. R. Curtiss argued in favor of the validity of the act, and Hon. Clarkson N. Potter against. The argument will probably occupy several days.

The special Commissioners recently appointed to examine the Central Pacific Railroad, officially report that the road is being rapidly and substantially built.

The Clerk of the Court of Claims has presented to Congress, in accordance with the law, a statement of all the judgments rendered in that Court for the year ending December 8th, which shows judgments to the extent of of $800,000; one for $123,000 for captured cotton, and other large sums on the same account.

The force employed in the Treasury was reduced by the dismissal of twenty-five lady clerks. It is contemplated to make a larger reduction of the clerical force of the Department during the present month.

The Secretary of the Treasury yesterday issued bonds amounting to $1,280 000, to the Union Pacific, and $640,000 to the Central Pacific railroad.

The forthcoming public debt statement will show the amount of coin in the Treasury to be $88,000,000, including $23,000,000 in coin certificates.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, December 8.—A fire took place in a tenement house on Duane street this morning, and several rooms were burned out. Two women named Crowley and McEwen, carpet rag sewers, were burned to death. Several others narrowly escaped the same fate.

The Times editorially warns the people against canards from Washington, London and Paris, in the interest of Wall street speculators. It thinks President Johnson should be reimbursed for the expenses of defending himself against impeachment, and says that the idea is favored by the Controller of Currency.

There was a high gale last night and to-day from the North and West. A large ship is reported ashore on Long Island, and reports from Boston, also, state that several vessels are ashore in that vicinity, but no lives were lost.

WHEELING.

WHEELING, VA., December 8.—No trains have arrived from the east since 5 p.m. yesterday. All are snow barred on top of the Alleghanies.

CONGRESSIONAL.

WASHINGTON, December 8 1868.

SENATE.

The President presented a communication from the Court of Claims, relating to the Judges of that Court, and another from the Interior Department, urging relief for the destitute Indians in upper Missouri. Both were laid on the table.

Bills extending the Freedmen's Bureau in certain States for a certain period, for removing political disabilities and abolishing the franking privilege, were tabled and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Sumner offered a resolution calling on the President for information concerning the recent transactions in the Louisiana, plata (?) which was adopted.

Mr. Patterson presented a memorial relating to the improvement of the Tennessee river, which was tabled and ordered to be printed.

A joint resolution was introduced, relating to the Court of Claims, which provides that the provisions of the act of July 4, 1864, entitled "An act to limit the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims," be extended to the loyal people of the States of Louisiana and Arkansas, and that the act of the 19th of February, 1867, entitled "An act to declare the sense of an act entitled 'an act to restrict the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims,'" shall not be so construed as to prohibit the payment of claims of loyal citizens of the United States, in said States. It was laid on the table and ordered to be printed, and then the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.

In the House the bill regulating the duties on copper and copper ore, was taken up and passed. Yeas, 107; nays 51.

Several communications were presented and appropriately referred. A communication from the Oregon Legislature was read. It instructs their Senators to resign, they having voted for measures plainly unconstitutional, which have overthrown civil liberty and free government in eleven States.

Washburne, of Illinois, offered a resolution returning the resolution, the same being scandalous, impertinent and indecorous. The previous question was seconded and the resolution was adopted; yeas—27 nays 35.

Mr. Butler, of Massachusetts, introduced a bill repealing the tenure-of-office act, which was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. Garfield, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported a bill to restore the Bureau of Indian Affairs to the War Department from January 1, 1869, and moved the previous question on its passage. The bill then passed by a vote of 116 to 33.

Mr. Robinson then obtained the floor to speak on the subject of American citizens imprisoned in Great Britain, and offered a resolution calling on the President for information on the subject. He declared that every day Warren and Costello were allowed to remain in British prisons without remonstrance on the part of the American Government, the country suffered a disgrace. These men had been convicted, he argued, for acts done and words spoken in the United States, and had been refused their right to a mixed jury; and if he had his will, no man should eat his dinner, no woman marry a husband, and no business carried on until there was a declaration of war by the United States against Great Britain.

Mr. Wood made a few remarks, declaring that he concurred in the views of his colleague. The House then adjourned.

HAVANA.

HAVANA, December 8.—A pitched battle has been fought between the troops and the rebels. The following is the official account: "Valmoseda met the rebels at the foot of Mount Atis Gracci, between Principe and Nuevitas, when a general engagement ensued. The losses were equal—each side having about five hundred killed. Gen. Betancourt was taken prisoner. The Marquis of Santa Lucra and other rebel officers are reported to be wounded."

The Government has also received reports of a fight at Motion, at which one hundred and eighty-eight soldiers defeated a large crowd of rebels, killing eighty-three of them, and captured four hundred horses, with a loss to themselves of forty-one killed and six wounded.

The latest news from Holguin is favorable to the hopes of the loyalists. The thirty-seven soldiers who fortified themselves in the hospital held it against the insurgents. The reinforcements will arrive to-day, when another struggle is anticipated for the possession of the place.

The Diaro reports that at a place about eight leagues distant from Santa Esparato, some rebels entered a private house and ravished four girls in the presence of their parents.

Later accounts of the battle at Maron represent the Spanish loss at 100 killed, and the rebel loss at only forty killed. The rebel sympathisers claim that Kalamazers was defeated at Mount Atis Gracci.

Private letters from near the scene of battle contradict the latter report, and heartily sustain the official dispatches. It is very difficult to obtain correct and trustworthy information, as the city is flooded with contradictory reports.

FOREIGN.

LIVERPOOL, December 8.—The steamer Hibernia, from New York on 14th November, for Glasgow, sunk on the 25th ult. seventy miles to the westward of the Irish coast, the passengers and crew all taking to the boats (five in number.) Two of the boats have been picked up; one is known to be capsized and all on board lost, and the fate of the people in the remaining two is unknown. It is now certain that fifty-two persons, including the captain, are saved. The first mate was drowned by the capsizing of the boat.

LONDON, December 8.—The new telegraphic arrangements go into effect in January, and in accordance with an agreement made at the International Telegraphic Convention, recently held at Vienna, for the modification and equalization of the tolls, the rates are to be considerably reduced, and the Morse and Hughes instruments are to be selected for use, on the various lines.

A very heavy gale prevailed throughout England on Sunday night and Monday morning. Many telegrams reporting marine disasters have been received. The shipping in the harbors has suffered much. Many houses were blown down, and the damage has been very great.

Mr. D'Israeli had an interview with the Queen yesterday, at which he resigned his seal of office.

Among the appointments which have been settled is that of John, Duke of Coleridge, as Solicitor General.

The Times congratulates Gladstone on the speedy formation of his cabinet.

PARIS, December 8.—Le Moniteur says that Count Bismarck, soon after his return to Berlin, had an interview with the Ambassadors from France, England and Russia, and assured them of his confidence in the maintenance of good feeling between the European powers.

CINCINNATI.

CINCINNATI, December 8.—S. P. Haylan, an ex-messenger for the American Express Company, was brought here to-day, under arrest, for robbing that company of $20,000 last March.

The excitement relative to the recent steamboat disaster continues. Parties are arriving from all quarters to inquire about lost friends and relatives. The scene at Warsaw, Ky., beggars description.

In the National Board of Trade to-day a resolution was adopted expressing a sense of horror at the recent steamboat calamity, and tendering to the relatives and friends of the sufferers their heartfelt sympathy. The Board will hold its next session at Richmond, Va.

BUFFALO.

BUFFALO, N. Y., December 8.—The trains from the East were delayed five hours to-day by the snow storm.

WEATHER AND RIVERS.

LOUISVILLE, December 8.—The river is rising, with seven feet ten inches in the canal.

The weather is clear. Thermometer went to 28° to-day.

ST. LOUIS, December 8.—The river is stationary, with plenty of water above and below, though ice is forming in the upper streams.

The Julia and Marble City arrived today. There were no departures.

The Directors of the Atlantic and Mississippi Steamship Company have re-elected W. J. Lewis, President; George Pegram, Vice President; P. Fitzgerald, Secretary.

CAIRO, December 8.—The weather is clear and cool.

The river is stationary.

Up—Minneola, Norman, Shreve, Cora S., and Virginia.

Down—Luminary, 10 a.m.; City of Cairo, 2 p.m.; Tempest, 5 p.m.

NASHVILLE.

NASHVILLE, December 8.—Chancellor Shackleford rendered a decision to-day in the case of the citizens against the city authorities, for an injunction, and the appointment of a Receiver to collect the taxes. The decision was in favor of the city authorities.

NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, December 8.—The first race over the Metairie course to-day, the sixth and last were mile heats, for a purse of $100—was won by Jack Gamble, beating Weisenburst and Tom Green. Time 1:54½, 1:55½. The second race was a walk over. The third race was for a purse of $1000, three mile heats, which resulted as follows: Sundown, 1-1; Carrie Atherton, 2-3; Transit 3-3; Chemisette distanced. Time 6:03, 6:04.

The weather was fine, the track good, and the attendance very large.

GEORGIA.

SAVANNAH, December 8.—F. Bradbatker, who was shot and killed by negroes on Saturday last, was buried to-day. The fire companies and German associations turned out in force. Two of the wounded patrolmen are in a critical condition. The excitement has somewhat subsided. More arrests have been made.

TOLEDO.

TOLEDO, December 8.—A wood train on the Cleveland and Toledo road was thrown from the track yesterday afternoon, near Milberry station, and John Heland and Michael Caslo killed; John Maloney seriously injured, and four or five others slightly injured.

JOHN LILLY has removed his large and select stock of staple and fancy groceries, wines, liquors, etc., to No. 351 Main street, where his friends and the public generally will find a superior stock of all goods in his line, at lowest market rates for cash. 1w

COLD.—The first real cold snap of the season came on us night before last, and yesterday morning the gutters were full of ice, the streets frozen hard, and the window panes covered with a net-work of frost. The sun, though it shone bright and clear, did not move the ice during the day, and the evening yesterday was bitter cold.

THE STREETS continue crowded with strangers. The throng of ladies on Main street daily from 10 to 3 o'clock is quite dazzling. We have rarely seen a city of the size of Memphis where so many pretty faces and handsome figures greet the eye at every turn, as in our own city. "Long may she wave!"

A NEW SOUTHERN BOOK.—Miss Nellie Marshall, of Ky., well known in our city, is, we are pleased to learn, about to give to the world a new novel. It is a story of the war and is entitled "As by Fire," and will be issued from the press of Geo. S. Wilcox, (successor to Bickley & Co.) New York.

AN AFFRAY occurred yesterday evening about six o'clock, on the steamer Magenta, lying at the levee, between a mate and a deck hand, which came near being very serious, but which resulted in a few pretty severe bruises only. The deck hand struck the mate with a slung-shot several times and ran, the mate firing at him as he did so, but missing him. No arrests were made at the time.

THE LATEST FASHIONS.—Our young men who desire to be up with the times and the fashions should call on McGeoy, the merchant tailor, 238 Second street, and examine his elegant assortment of cloths, cassimeres, vestings and overcoat material. McGeoy's is the handsomest stock in town, and he is prepared to make perfect fits in every style of garment. We advise our readers to call and see him without delay and make their selections. tf

THE Supreme Bench of Tennessee is, we learn from reliable sources, filled at last, and will be organized to-day or to-morrow. The Court consists of Judge Henry G. Smith, of our city, Judge J. O. Shackleford, of Nashville, (appointed to represent Middle Tennessee), and Judge George Andrew. Judge Shackleford has already been on the Supreme Bench, and also presided in the Chancery Courts of Montgomery and Davidson counties. Judge Andrew is appointed from East Tennessee, and has only resided in the State since the war.

HEAVY ROBBERIES.

The Mackerel Brigade on the Foray.

The Mackerel Brigade, after a period of inactivity and quiet, suddenly made matters quite lively in police and detective circles last evening. The immunity from the depredations of these juvenile but daring offenders, which the public has enjoyed for some time back, was the result of the action of 'Squire Griffith and the Police Commissioners, who, about a month ago, banished some of them and retired several others to the County Jail for a period of thirty days. Those who were run away from the city, thinking matters had blown over, have again returned to the city, just about the time that their partners had served out their time and were released from jail. Three of these latter class, Jack Ackerman, Wm. Saunders, and Pat. Callahan, came to grief yesterday afternoon in a most summary manner, having only been allowed to bask in the sunshine of liberty a couple of days, before being grabbed a second time. An ancient African who had made a little crop of cotton came to town yesterday morning and sold it, drawing a snug little sum, and after buying his groceries and truck, started home last night with seven hundred dollars in his pocket. By some means just before getting on board the boat that was to carry him to the bosom of his expectant spouse and pickaninies, he fell into the hands of the three young thieves above mentioned, who lighted his wallet of every cent it contained. He soon discovered his loss, and, like a sensible darky, made for police headquarters and told his story. Detective Connel was given the case to work up, and in a very short time he had not only arrested the thieves, but recovered the money, every cent of it, and the old darky, "happy as a big sun-flower," was sent on his way rejoicing. Ackerman, Saunders and Callahan are now in the First district stationhouse, whence, if we are not much mistaken, they will go to the penitentiary. The second case is of a mule trader, who arrived on the steamer Liberty No 2, and engaged a hack driver named Jocky Eagan to carry him and his family to the steamer Clifton. While about the levee his pockets were lighted of a roll of six or seven hundred dollars. Eagan was arrested immediately, but nothing was found on him, and he will be discharged. There is no doubt that the mackerels got this sum also, for they swarmed around the landing at the time. The case will be worked up to-day; meanwhile, all citizens should keep a sharp lookout for these young rascals.

IRISH Poplins, best quality and all shades, at $1 25 per yard. tf RICE & ENGEL.

A RUNAWAY MATCH.—The daughter of an old and well-known citizen, lately deceased, a maiden of fifteen summers, and, as the novelists say, "just budding into womanhood," disappeared from her boarding house on Second street, on Monday afternoon. It was shortly afterwards discovered that a certain ex-hotelkeeper, from Adams street, who was in the habit of visiting her frequently, had also disappeared—having been last seen wending his way toward the Louisville Railroad depot. The mother of the young lady, who is as shrewd as mothers with marriageable daughters proverbially are, or ought to be, "putting this and that together," at once smelled a large sized mice, and put out for the train also, but too late to catch it. She returned to her residence, determined to make the riffle and follow the runaways, next day, to Brownsville, where from certain circumstances she was confident of finding them. While awaiting another train, however, a letter came addressed to the mamma from the daughter; informing her that she was married to the man of her choice the evening before in Brownsville. The letter was received first with considerable indignation, but on due reflection, and after receiving the consolation of her friends, who assured her that "what was done could not be undone," and it was "no use crying over spilled milk," she became reconciled, and wrote for the couple to come home, and they should be forgiven. The successful denouement is a matter of congratulation to the happy pair, who, we are informed, had made two unsuccessful attempts previous to the one which terminated so auspiciously.

CALISAYA BARK.—It is said that Messrs. Drake & Co. (proprietors of the Plantation Bitters) are the largest importers of Calisaya Bark in this country, and that, with the exception of an occasional sale, all they import is used in the compounding of their celebrated Plantation Bitters—to which they undoubtedly are indebted for their wonderful health-restoring properties. As a Tonic and Appetizer they are not surpassed, and we cheerfully recommend them All first-class Druggists keep them for sale.

THE COLUMBUS INDEX of the 4th inst. says that Dr. Kingsbury, of our city, was in that town and delivered an address on Sunday last. Dr. Kingsbury is Corresponding Secretary of the Sunday School Board of the Southern Baptist Convention; and is now on a tour through the States, receiving subscriptions for the establishment of a library of pure Sunday School literature. We hope that his co-religionists will help him in his enterprise, and that a noble library may be the fruits thereof.

Manufactured Cigars and Tobacco.

The following letter from Commissioner Harland, relative to shipping tobacco and cigars previous to offering them for sale, is an important document:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE INT. REV., WASHINGTON, December 2, 1868.

On and after the 23d instant all cigars and tobacco in the hands of the manufacturers before being removed from the place of manufacture must be stamped as provided in the new law. The simple inspection of tobacco and cigars prior to the 23d instant, does not relieve them from liability to stamp in the hands of the manufacturer. A manufacturer is not obliged to stamp tobacco and cigars immediately after packing. He must, however, stamp them before selling, offering for sale, or removing from the place of manufacture, for sale, use or consumption.

THIRD WARD DEMOCRACY, ATTENTION!—There will be a meeting for the nomination of candidates, at the Engine House, corner of Adams and Second, tomorrow (Thursday) evening at 7½ o'clock.

CAPT. P. S. SIMMONDS, of the First District Police, yesterday moved into the new house lately presented to him by the men of his command. The house is a neat cottage, situated on Second street near the bridge, in Chelsea, and has quite a large garden attached to it. The Captain deserves the handsome testimonial, and we hope he may live long to enjoy it.

THEATER.—The White Fawn again drew a fine house last night, and was put on the boards with the usual elegance and effect. It is repeated to-night for the last time. Every one who has not seen it, should not fail to improve the last chance offered them of seeing it, this season at least, in Memphis To-morrow the spectacle of Cinderilla will be presented.

MEMPHIS.

Her Past and Future—Railroad Progress, etc.

To the toast "The City of Memphis," at the late dinner to Mayor Leftwich, Judge Swayne responded in the following eloquent terms:

Sir: I have heartily joined in this toast, in the use of a very fine article. Now, had you announced, instead of "The City of Memphis," the continent, or South America, or Europe, or Asia, or Africa, and called on me to respond, the task were not so great, because then there were more room to spread or to scatter; or, had you said the United States only, then, since the war and yet, the United States are so disunited by the politicians that the theme would be merely numerically large. But here, as a city, never divided nor dividing, we have been lately enlarged three-fold, so that now, within our boundary-arms might live and move and trade and thrive the teeming thousands of that great commercial world, New York, and a million spindles and whizzing wheels, and ten thousand anvils and resounding hammers, and lumbering drays might commingle their noises to make the grand hum of a vast city. And you see that my subject is certainly hightened and not less adorned when we consider the Mayor we have—a gentleman, a Christian gentleman, a lettered man, a man of dignity and grace and comely mien, whose mind and heart and tongue and pen and spotless life adorn the station that he holds, as the representatives of all parties here tonight do heartily concede. What city claims a Mayor of more intelligence or purer character, or conferring greater honor? Of our people and their choice, known to them and knowing them, he lives in their hearts and they in his; servant and people together illustrating the beautiful form of government our fathers left us. And our "City Fathers"—are they not fathers of dignity and wisdom and eloquence, as well as rotundity? Do they not sedulously study and devote their time, very eagerly and thanklessly, to the interests of the city? And have they not elevated her name and her credit?

Sir, you touch me keenly and awake my pride when you name the name of Memphis, my home on the Bluffs for over twenty years. About so long ago, the census then taken showed us but a respectable town of five or six thousand inhabitants; the business was all transacted on Front Row, and chiefly in very common houses; scarcely an insignificant factory was operated; not a locomotive thundered near on its iron track; father Cayce essayed to run an omnibus on the streets, but the idea was too huge, and it failed. On the two miles of Main street was not a single business house, and (excepting two or three hazardous adventurers) only a few shoemakers' shops and stables—mine lordly host of the "Peabody" being the hero of one of them, a rickety old frame—and several drinkeries, occupied that thoroughfare.

To-day, behold the city of Memphis! Sixty thousand inhabitants dwell here; her business is done on many streets and cross streets, that are walled up heavenward with bazaars of trade and palatial mansions that would shame no city in the world; nine miles of streets are beautifully if not substantially paved on the Nicholson plan, and on six and two-third miles of streets, cars go to and fro laden with human freight; long trains on railroads arrive and depart from and to all points of our great country; manufactures, the arts, science and industry are in every direction; the finest and largest packets are multiplied on all our waters; and all around us are the marks of a city, and the signs of increasing power and wealth and greatness.

But, sir, we must remember that this day is a day of progress, and we must not—can not—stand where we are. Revolution has shaken from slumber all the energies of the country. The people are in motion, heart, head and hand. We, too, must be in motion—must go onward or be crushed in the march of events, and under the unrelenting wheel of progress. A part of our work is to remedy errors. At first, and years ago, we justly earned a proud name—second only, in all the Union, considering population, to that of Savannah for railroad enterprise; but in our rapid and splendid march we made a few important blunders that have since marred our great achievements, and which we have now to correct, and without further delay. Had a branch of the Charleston road been built to Holly Springs, or the Somerville branch extended to Jackson, Tenn., neither the Mobile and Ohio nor the Mississippi Central would have been constructed to pass us by on the east, with their wealth of trade and travel; and now, failing to take wise action and prompt, the vast trade of Arkansas and Texas may be turned to the Cairo and Fulton road, and so cause us to be passed again on the west, leaving to us but a narrow belt between and the lone majesty of the river, whose facilities are exceeded by the railroad as its speed is by the iron horse.

How are we to defeat these dangers, and maintain the growth, power and supremacy of the Mississippi? Consolidate our roads, and checkmate those that, coming from the South, carry trade and travel past us, by opening lines from the south, through the city, northward; building the Selma road, so soon as practicable, into the broad and fleecy fields that now yield us nothing. On the west, construct the Memphis and St. Louis road, which, connecting here with the roads from the south, will extend another air line northward through Memphis, and bring down the iron from those vast mountains of ore to our foundries, the pine from those vast forests, and the breadstuffs from those abundant plains, and whose roadbed, forming also a levee and barrier to the Mississippi, extending to Helena, will be the only sure protection to the Memphis and Little Rock road, and reclaim, for the benefit of Memphis and mankind, like the dikes of Holland, the millions of acres, as rich as human eyes ever saw, lying east of the St. Francis river and west of the Mississippi; and lastly, but of chief importance, finish the Memphis and Little Rock road. It will prevent the divergence to Cairo, and will bring to and through Memphis northward, the trade and travel of Arkansas and Texas. I say, this road is of chief importance. It is to be our Pacific-road, and a thoroughfare for the commerce of the world across the continent; it is to open to us the vast trade of the West. And, it is well for us to consider that, though preferring Memphis, the people West and Southwest prefer, before any given point, some point of connection East or North. Finish, then, the Little Rock road. It will give them their choice and Memphis the benefit, and be a connection for them by the roads converging here, including the St. Louis road, with all points East, North and South; it will be to all these roads a Pacific road—an extension for them West and Southwest, and supercede the necessity to them and to the people of the Cairo and Fulton.

I might allude, also, to the necessity to our city of enlarging our manufacturing interests, and other interests, if time allowed.

Sir, we have only to behold and press forward to our destiny, forgetting all the bitterness and healing all the wounds of the past and present, cultivating peace and unity, elevating, mentally, morally, and religiously—every class, color and race among us—rendering implicit obedience to law, and inviting to our untilled acres and growing marts, all, from any part of our own or foreign lands, who may add to our growth and prosperity.

Oh, what a country we have in this South land! God has given us a crop worth $400,000,000, and He has given us a great and beautiful country, all over, from the lakes to the Gulf, and from ocean to ocean. This city is in the midst of it, and on the banks of the Great River; below impediments from ice and low water; in the most temperate and healthful latitude; and in the highway of Nature and of nations, through the passes of the mountains East and West, between the two oceans. We have only to be true to ourselves, and Memphis on the Mississippi will succeed in splendor, power and renown, the ancient Memphis on the Nile.

THE SCHOOL TAX.

Can District and Sub-District Directors Collect it?

Judge Shackleford Thinks Not, and Enjoins them.

A bill has been filed in the Chancery Court of Clarksville, which is of interest to every tax payer in the State. It is filed by the tax payers of a Civil District to enforce the collection of taxes assessed, under the provisions of section fourteen of an act passed the 14th of March, 1868, entitled "An act to amend an act to provide for the reorganization, supervision and maintenance of free common schools, passed March, 5, 1867."

Under a provision of this law, the School Directors submitted to the voters of a sub district in the county of Montgomery an appearance of three mills on the dollar, which assessment was paid by a majority of the voters of the subdistrict. The taxes were assessed in pursuance of the law, and the officer proceeded to the collection of the sums so assessed. The tax payers, believing the law, authorising the assessment not warranted by the Constitution, filed a bill to enjoin the collection of the sum. In the absence of the Chancellor of the district, the complainants presented their bill to Judge Shackleford on Thursday last for an injunction. The Chancellor was clearly of the opinion the Legislature had no power to submit the question of taxation to district or sub-district of a county, and granted the injunction. Previous to the Constitution of 1834 the question came before the Supreme Court of the State, and in the case of Mart vs. Eusles, 1 Yer., 458, it was held that representation and taxation are of necessity, in our Government, inseparable, hence, the right of taxation cannot be delegated. This decision produced the adoption of the twenty-ninth section of article second of the Constitution, which declares that the General Assembly shall have power to authorize the several counties and incorporate towns in this State to impose taxes for county and incorporate purposes, respectfully, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law, etc. Under this provision, the Judge was of opinion that the Legislature had now power to submit the question to a fractional vote of the county. It is a matter of much interest to the people of the State, and, as it may seriously affect the interests of the common schools, the attention of the Legislature is called to the matter, that such provision may be made by law as will enable the directors of common schools to carry out the system that has been adopted.

THE WEEKLY APPEAL is ready for delivery, neatly done up in wrappers for mailing, at the counting room of the Daily APPEAL, No. 13 Jefferson street, this morning.

OUR INDUSTRIAL RESOURCES

On Saturday last there were meetings in Nashville of three Societies for the advancement of the economical interests of Tennessee. The first was a meeting of the Directors of the State Agricultural and Mechanical Society. They passed a resolution requesting the people of the State at large to take stock in the Society, and appointed parties to solicit subscriptions. Mr. Cockrill, one of the Directors, offered a resolution, which was adopted, that publication be made of the objects and intent of the Directors, the place proposed to be purchased, number of acres and places; also, that, in view of the necessity of at once taking action in securing and laying out the grounds, and in view of the importance of the objects to be attained, that the newspapers of the State be requested to announce that the public will be immediately called upon for subscriptions, and to urge upon the various County Associations to become stockholders.

The second meeting was the Tennessee Apiarian Association, who had under discussion the question "bee raising, hives, etc."

The third meeting was that of the State Horticultural Society. The Banner of Sunday, in speaking of its proceedings, says: "The Corresponding Secretary read a letter from Gen. Hussman, of Herman, Mo., acknowledging a special premium for the 'Rulander' wine. After stating that this wine has since received the first premium from the Wine Growing Association, he says of the grape: 'The Rulander, though not very productive, (yielding only two hundred and fifty gallons of wine to the acre), more than makes this up in its fine qualities.' In this climate he thinks it will do even better. The vine is not subject to mildew or other disease."

The report so anxiously looked for by practical farmers, on the "fruits adapted to this State," was not quite finished and was not presented. We look for it with interest.

We were pleased to learn that it is the intention to publish that enterprising agricultural weekly, the Dixie Farmer, in Nashville, after the first of January, and will welcome it as a great acquisition for Nashville in that department. The progress of the society is evidenced by the fact of their having over three hundred members and the number is increasing.

THE COURTS.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT AND CIRCUIT COURTS—Hon. Connally F. Trigg, presiding.—The civil docket will be called on to-day and to-morrow.

The criminal docket will be taken up again on Friday.

The motion made to dissolve the injunction in the case of Anderson vs. Hunt, was refused.

The case of the United States vs. Fisher, and the same vs. Roper, were continued.

A number of persons under bond, failing to answer the call of the criminal docket, forfeited them.

CHANCERY COURT.—Wm. M. Smith, Chancellor.—The argument in the Nicholson paving cases, on demurrer, was not concluded yesterday. The argument will be resumed this morning. These cases will probably occupy the attention of the court the remainder of the week.

MUNICIPAL COURT—Geo. W. Waldran, Judge.—Only a few cases on yesterday's calendar were disposed of. The cases not disposed of yesterday will be called for trial to-day. No. 1295 is the first case to be disposed of this morning. There will be no informal call of the docket.

CRIMINAL COURT.—J. E. Bigelow, Judge, etc.—The trial of the case of the State vs James Brown, indicted for murder, was going on at a late hour yesterday evening. It is likely that this case will continue for two or three days.

WE WOULD call the attention of country merchants and retail dealers generally, to the advertisement which appears in another column, of the house of Messrs. Allison Brothers, wholesale dealers in hardware, guns, cutlery, etc., 270 Front row. Messrs. Allison, although they have been in business in Memphis but a short time, have established a reputation for fair dealing that might well be the work of years, and we cordially and confidently recommend them to our friends and patrons. In addition to their large and complete stock of hardware, cutlery, guns, etc., they are the agents of Carver & Co.'s cotton gins, fire proof safes, Tennessee charcoal, and Kentucky iron.

FINANCE.

Money matters are easy, and rates of exchange are the same as yesterday. Offerings are light, and the demand is fair upon all points. Good commercial bills are discounted for customers at our banks at 9 to 12 per cent., and collaterals are taken at 1½ to 2 per cent. per month from outsiders.

We did not learn of any transactions in City Bonds to-day, but there was a fair inquiry at 52@52½c for Plain and Paving Bonds. The former are most in request.

County Warrants are firm. All offered are taken at 75@76c; selling by dealers at 77@80c, as to amount.

Police Scrip is firm. Buying at 92c; selling at 95c.

Gold in New York opened at 136½, but declined during the day, closing at 135½. New York Central opened at 128½, and declined ½c before the close. Erie advanced ½c during the day, closing at 37½c. Exchange opened steady. Loans, 3 per cent. Exchange advanced at 11 a.m. to 9½@10½c.

A few light sales of gold were reported in this market, but holders generally ask New York rates. As there is no counter demand, brokers must keep a shipping margin, and quotations are under those of New York about 1c buying; selling at eastern rates.

The rates of taxation in the United States in the years 1860 and 1868 will be given in an interesting table now in the course of preparation by the Bureau of Statistics, at Washington. The exact figures, supported by documentary proof and going into minute details, will appear in the tables when published. The rough estimates are as follows: In 1860 the Federal tax paid by the people of the United States was $56,000,000; the State tax, $24,000,000; and county, town, special and other taxes, $54,000,000—making a total of $134,000,000, or about $4 32 for each individual. In 1868 the amount of Federal tax was $500,000; State tax, $75,-000,000; and the county, town, special and other taxes, $276,000,000—making the total of $851,000,000, or $23 for each person in the United States.

COTTON.

The opening Liverpool dispatch was not received in New York to-day until the day had waned, owing to a storm raging east of that city. When it did come it quoted a dull market, with Uplands 10¼d; Orleans, 11¼d. At 1 p.m. it was easier; Uplands, 10½@10¾d; Orleans, 11@11¼d. Sales, 8000 bales.

Cotton was irregular in New York at the opening; Uplands, nominally 24½c. At 10:35 it was dull and tending downwards; Uplands, 24¼c. It was quiet but steady at 11 a.m., in the absence of cable news. At noon it was dull and nominal; Low Middlings, 23½c; Middlings, 24½c; Mobile, 24½c; Orleans, 24½c; Good Middlings, 25½c. At 2 p.m. the demand was fair and prices firm, with sharp purchases for export; Uplands, 24½c. At the close the demand was fair and prices firm; Low Middlings, 23½c; Uplands, 24½c; Mobile, 24½c; Orleans, 25c; Good Middlings, 25½c. Offerings light. Sales, 2500 bales.

The New Orleans market opened with a moderate demand, and prices firm. Middlings, 22½@22¾c; and at 2:15 p.m. the demand was active at full prices; Middlings, 22½@22¾c. Sales, 5000 bales.

Our market opened with a fair inquiry, and holders were disposed to sell upon a basis of 22¼@22½c; but as the day advanced the market hardened until at the close 23c was the asking rate for Middlings. A large number of orders are on the market, many of them for high grades of cotton, which is not to be found except to a limited amount. The sales for the day will foot up something over 1000 bales, or about one-third of the unsold stock on hand. Among the lists changing hands were 6 bales Good Ordinary at 21½c; 28 at 21¾c; 75 Strict Good Ordinary to Low Middlings at 22c; 376 do at 22c; 28 and 12 do at 22c; 48 do at 22½c; 29 do 22¾c; 10 do at 22½c; 48, 10, 53, 128 Middlings at 22½c; 25 do at 22¾c; 2 Strict Middlings at 23c; 10 do at 23½c.

We quote as follows:

Ordinary	21 @21¼
Good Ordinary	21¾@22
Low Middlings	22¼@22½
Middlings	22½@22¾
Strict Middlings	23 @23½
Good Middlings	24 @—

Some of our planters who ship cotton to New Orleans may be interested in the following account of the way it is sheared before being sold. The writer, who is a Liverpool buyer located in New Orleans, evidently knows whereof he speaks:

On arrival in New Orleans the bales of cotton consigned to the order of the factor, or commission merchant, who may be the planter's agent, are sent to the press patronised by that factor, and are there ranged on edge in rows with any others for his house, in order that his sampler or weigher may draw a sample, which is taken from each bale; every planter's samples being kept distinct in separate papers, marked with the planter's mark, number of bales, etc. All loose cotton, and, with few exceptions, all cotton that can be torn out of the sample hole, is taken and becomes the perquisite of the weigher. Some weighers only take the actual loose, while others really plunder the bale; but be it much or little taken, all this is previous to weighing the cotton, and does not affect the buyer. After this the bales are stored in the sheds ready for delivery to the broker on the factor's order.

The samples are taken to the factor's office, and are there placed on his tables for sale in a list with any others which he may think suitable. The question of arranging lists is one concerning only the factor, and sometimes is mere matter of chance with him, so that a list may have any number of bales, planters' marks, and grades of cotton.

The broker having purchased a list of cotton, receives from the factor an order for delivery on the press where the cotton may be stored, and as soon as convenient sends his classer and markers to receive it. Delays may occur between the sale and the receiving of the cotton, caused by the brokers' clerks being busy on previous purchases, by rainy weather (for the cotton has to be turned out into the yard, there not being room to range it under cover), or by the press being blocked with other cotton, as sometimes happens.

In delivering the cotton to the broker's clerk all bales of each shipment and planter's mark are placed together ranged on edge in rows for the convenience of the classer. A second sample hole is cut, as it is almost impossible to draw a sample from the weigher's sample hole after his men have dug out all they can. The bales are classed as the sample is drawn, the classer marking the class in chalk, and the marker following with a brush and ink, and putting the shipping mark and number on them. They are then ready for the weigher.

The majority of the brokers' clerks are quite as expert at taking "loose" as the weighers, and the sample holes are again skinned at the expense of the seller, for the cotton is not yet weighed. There are brokers' clerks who do not take "loose."

It is at this time that the boys employed by the press are most active. Their work is nominally to pick up all cotton loose in the yard; but as their efficiency is judged not by the cleanness of the yard, but by the size of the pile of loose cotton, there is a strong temptation to rob sample holes and bales which may have lost two or three bands. When one of these bales is in good position it is robbed most unmercifully—not always at the instance of the press owner it must be said, but still not many men could say they have ever seen the owner correct or punish the boys for doing so. Still all this is done before the cotton is weighed, and is therefore not yet felt by the buyer.

TRADE.

Tuesday, which is generally a brisk day, certainly lost some of its characteristics to-day, for trade was not active on our principal streets. Some houses reported a good business, while others were deserted, and plenty of time was allowed to poke the fires.

Meats are still firm and are held at an advance on yesterday's figures; but the demand is too light to permit of any material upward movement. It is certain that they cannot be bought above and laid down here for the rates prevailing, and were it not for the small trade doing holders would be compelled to realize better figures. In connection with the subject of meats we give the following:

CARSON LANDING, BOLIVAR, MISS.

Editors Memphis Appeal:

In your paper of November 25th containing, among other good things, an account of the meeting and transactions of the Chamber of Commerce, I perceived with a great deal of pleasure that Capt. Mahan had offered a resolution which concerns myself and many others, and involved to us a subject of almost vital interest. This resolution was for the purpose of correcting the fraudulent system of pork packing; and it was with regret that I saw that it was quashed by some who considered it an insult to the merchants of Memphis. Now, if this evil really exists, and there are hundreds who can attest it, why should the resolution be quashed.

If Memphis is to become a grand commercial center, which we believe it will, it is surely advisable that she should use the proper means for attaining so desirable an end. She must necessarily practice those principles of honor, probity and justice which are the true keystones to success in every business and relation of life, whether practiced by individuals or communities. Able and public spirited men report that the trade of Memphis is falling off, and that many who had shipped cotton to and ordered supplies from that place, are now turning in other directions, principally on account of this evil alluded to by Capt. Mahan. In former flush times planters were not accustomed to calculate so closely, but now with small crops and lank pockets, they are necessarily compelled to make closer calculations. Even a barrel of pork is an item of consideration, and when this exhibits a deficit of twenty or thirty pounds they say that there is a wrong somewhere, and hope by going to New Orleans or St. Louis they may obtain their just right. Now it seems to me that when a respectable merchant, sharing in the weal and woe with the balance of the merchants of your city, willingly assumes a part of the blame, and introduces a project of reform, the respectable body of which he is a member, should have seconded his efforts—thereby procuring for the city that prosperity and advancement which they seem to have so much at heart. Honest confession is said to be good for the soul of man. I suppose the same axiom will apply to humanity either individually or collectively. We, "the sore-headed, growling purchasers of light weights," congratulate the merchant who has taken the initiative. We say to him: Sir, you have started the ball; don't let insulted dignity impede its progress; push it on manfully, boldly, and magnanimously, and many who are now turning their backs upon your town with direful anathemas, will return and help to build up and enlarge the borders of the Bluff City.

The writer confesses to being one of those "sore-headed purchasers of light weights." He is almost tempted to leave a very respectable mercantile house because at thirty-three dollars a barrel for pork, that barrel is perhaps twenty-five pounds less than what he paid for, and this makes him groan both in spirit and in pocket, and he looks to his merchant, and to all other merchants, to call the pork packers to account, insist on there being meat inspectors appointed whose brands shall warrant full weight and sound meat, and my word for it, complaints will cease, and an increase of trade will be the consequence.

J. B. BRANDER.

We do not know of more than one or two lots of "light weight" pork finding its way to this market so far this season. Last year very general and just complaint was made in regard to the matter, and we hope that those of our dealers who have sent it out to their customers became convinced that it was bad policy to do so, even at the reduced price. The cause of the matter being laid aside by the Chamber of Commerce at the time alluded to by our correspondent, was that the Chambers of Commerce of St. Louis, Chicago, Cincinnati, and, we believe other cities, had taken such action as was hoped would put an end to false packing by requiring the packer's name to be put upon each barrel. The "short weight" lots alluded to as having been received this season, were put up, we believe, at some point in Missouri above St. Louis on the Missouri river. Buyers can rest assured that meats of this character will not be countenanced in this market hereafter.

RIVER MATTERS.

WEATHER AND RIVERS.

Yesterday opened out bright and clear. The sun shone and the ice which had formed upon the sidewalks soon gave way before its genial warmth. Later in the day it again clouded up and was cold. The river rose three inches in the past twenty-four hours. We hear no later news from the Arkansas or White rivers. The stage of the upper rivers will be found in our telegraphic columns.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Natoma, for Friar's Point, the Myrtle, for Hale's Point, the St. Francis, for St. Francis river, and the Liberty and Des Arc, for White river, all left with good trips.

The Clifton, Capt. Stein, will get away to-day for Cairo and Cincinnati. She is one of our best Cincinnati packets, and Mr. Hunter, her clerk, is a popular and attentive officer.

The City of Cairo, Capt. Malin, leaves to-morrow for Cairo and St. Louis.

The Luminary, Capt. Bob Riley, will pass down to-day. She is the regular U. S. mail packet, and makes all way landings.

The Minnie, Capt. Doyle, will be in port to leave for the Arkansas to-day at 5 p.m.

The elegant new steamer Thomas H. Allen, Capt. Rees Pritchard, will be in port to leave to-morrow for Little Rock and way points on the Arkansas river. Sam Wood is clerk of the Allen.

The magnificent Magenta, Capt. Frank Hicks, will leave to-day at 5 p.m. for Vicksburg, the bends and New Orleans. She is one of our local packets and as such should be supported. The Magenta possesses every comfort imaginable to render travelers at home, and under Frank Smith's care all will be satisfied. In her office Messrs. Sullivan and Green preside and will be found polite and attentive clerks. We bespeak all the people and all the freight going for the Magenta to-day.

We learn that Pete Riley, Mate of the Magenta, was attacked by some parties last evening on board that boat and badly beaten with a slung shot.

The Lady Withaup, Capt. Beers, leaves to-day for Upper White river and tributaries, where she will ply in connection with the Des Arc. Mr. Sid. Humphreys is her clerk.

Married at the residence of the bride, in Madrid Bend, on December 1st, Capt. John H. Meeter, pilot of the Mary E. Forsyth, to Miss Jennie Nailing.

Insatiate Meeter would not Mary E. Forsyth suffice? Must you take another under your care to guide and protect through the storms and perils of the river of life? While Mary mourns the divided love of Capt. John, Miss Jennie rejoiceth, and well she may, for more gallant arm ne'er enfolded a lovely bride. We wish them prosperous gales, wealth, and never ending happiness.

Full particulars of the fearful accident upon the Ohio river, and its results, will be found in another part of this paper today. Of all the lives sacrificed upon this terrible occasion, none will be more sincerely regretted in our city than that of the young, talented and lovely Miss Johnson, daughter of our former fellow-townsman, Capt. W. Jay Johnson. Just merging into womanhood, the melancholy story of her death will be read by her schoolmates with feelings too sad to express.

The Sam Merwin sunk a barge at French Island, in the Ohio, a few days ago. Eight hundred bales of hay were lost.

Lew Kates has purchased an interest in the Nick Longworth and will command her.

Capt. Luker sold his interest (one-fifth) in the Luminary to J. Lee Finney, who in turn sold to Capt. John Boffinger. Capt. Lee Finney still retains his position in the office.

Further particulars of the burning of the D. M. Seehler have been received. The Seehler had arrived at Carrollton, Ky., about fifteen minutes before the fire was discovered, and nearly all her cargo had been discharged. The fire was occasioned by the breaking of a coal-oil lamp in the wash-room of the chambermaid. She burned to the water's edge, and then sunk, and now lies in about ten feet of water. The machinery can be recovered. There were no lives lost. The officers and crew lost all their clothing. Capt. George had contracted to sell the Seehler to the new Kentucky River Packet Company, recently organized in Louisville, for $6000. Her new commander, Capt. Dick Johnson, was on board when the fire occurred. The Seehler was built at Portsmouth, Ohio, in 1863, by Capt. Lodwick, and was owned by Capt. Thomas Vern, from Raymond City, Putnam county, West Virginia.

The Richmond may enter the mail line between Louisville and Cincinnati, in place of the America.

The wreck of the J. N. McCullough has been floated down toward the shipyard a considerable distance from where she sunk. The possibility of raising her is now rendered certain.

The Little Rock Gazette of the 4th says: River falling slowly; nine feet to mouth and five feet to Fort Smith.

The Dubuque Herald of Saturday says: The snow storm has closed up the river news, and it is doubtful if boats will venture another trip this season. Be it recorded that a packet left this city on the third day of December 1868, for St. Paul, also for Fulton. Last year packets ceased running on the 5th of December. The river was full of slush, ice and snow yesterday, and no boat was visible but the ferry.

WOLFE'S

Schiedam Schnapps.

It is now some twenty years since the proprietor first introduced it to the American public, and during that time he has received over three thousand letters from physicians, indorsing it as the purest liquor they have ever used in their practice.

It is made from barley of the finest quality, selected with great care from the products of the most celebrated grain-growing districts, is flavored with the essence of the aromatic juniper-berry of Italy, and is rectified by a peculiar process, which expels from the spirit every acrid particle.

As a means of preventing and correcting the disagreeable and often dangerous effect produced upon the stomach and bowels by a change of water—a visitation to which travelers, new settlers, and all unacclimated persons in the West, the South, and Southwest are peculiarly liable—the "CHIEDAM AROMATIC SCHNAPPS will be found absolutely infallible; while in cases of dropsy, gravel, obstructions of the kidneys, diseases of the bladder, stricture, dyspepsia and general debility, it is recommended most emphatically by the most distinguished members of the medical profession.

It is put up in quart and pint bottles, in cases, with the name of the undersigned on the bottle and cork, and a fac-simile of his signature on the label. For sale by all respectable druggists and country merchants.
